

Laboratory reagents

Our experience in this sector means we can accommodate the specificity of this market and supply dedicated products and services tailored to our customers' needs.

International quality parameters, usually ACS (American Chemical Society), are more often than not insufficient as the various brands that customers have in their catalogues have different features customised for the needs of the end user. This customisation ensures rigorous product reliability and a specific and expected reaction.

Our quality system means we can tailor the supply of the product to the guarantee required by each company and their specific needs. We guarantee that the products we supply fully comply with all the parameters contained in their specifications.

Another feature is the wide variety of products and grades we can produce. We can supply in bulk or using the specific packaging of each customer (bottles, cans, cubitainers, etc.). We work for leading global companies in their market segments, packaging and labelling according to their specifications and needs.

We will be more than happy to discuss your requirements and provide you with our specific experience in these products, their regulations, packaging and labelling.